Indicative and Imperative Mood

Indicative Mood

- ▶ The indicative mood is the most common and is used to express facts and opinions. Most of the statements you make or you read will be in the indicative mood.
- ▶ Examples:
 - Joe picks up the boxes.
 - The German Shepherd fetches the stick.
 - Charles closes the window.

IMPERATIVE MOOD

- Verbs in the imperative mood are used to give commands or requests.
- in other words → verbs in imperative sentences
- The following sentences use verbs in the imperative mood:
 - Go to the game.
 - Practice your instrument.
- Write sentences using imperative verbs, and make them the specified length. Be sure to underline the imperative verbs:
 - One word: Stop!
 - Two words: Go home.
 - Four words: Jog around the field.
 - Six words: Please, sit quietly in your groups.
