

Lesson 14. Grammar: Infinitive.

Topic: Hippocrates: Father of Medicine.

Infinitive

What is Infinitive?

An infinitive verb is a verb form that takes a “to” before the base form, as in “to make”, “to bring”, “to exercise”, etc. It is a term that is also used to refer to the base verb that does not function as the verb in the sentence.

- Infinitive with to is used:

1. To express purposes or intentions:
e.g.: She went to bring some food./ He bought some paints to paint the house.
2. After certain verbs (agree, appear, decide, expect, hope, plan, refuse, ask, begin, care, demand, deserve, happen, would like/love/prefer) e.g.: I don't care to participate in this game.
3. After adjectives that describe feelings (happy, sad, glad, pleased, excited...) express “un”willingness (willing, eager, reluctant, hesitant, motivated...), refer to characters (clever, kind, nice,...) and the adjectives (un)lucky and (un)fortunate.
e.g.: We're sad to hear about his death.
It's nice of you to help my son.